Storm Bearing Down on Funeral Ship Necessitates Shortening of Task.

DUE MONDAY MORNING

Halifax, Nova Scotis, May 1.—The cable steamship Minia, which succeeded the Mackay-Bennett in the search for the Tinantic's dead, will dock leave Monday morning with the remains of Passident Charles M. Tays and fourteen other bodies on believe through the Cape Blace station, before dawn to-day that he was complete to make a landing, owing to a heavy-eastern storm which is bearing down upon him. He says further search is furile because the remaining to a heavy-eastern storm which is bearing down upon the He says further search is furile because the remaining bodies have undeuthedly been widely cattered by this time. The widely discreped locations of bodies at present is illustrated by a wireless received last vening from the Minia showing that the only body picked up yeaterday, that of Ansistant Purser T. W. King, was found forty-five miles east of one picked up the day previous. The bodies are probably drifting eastward at the rate of eight miles a day or faster when the Guif Stream catches them.

Capt. De Cartrert reports that leaves are extremely unnercous just how and extend as far south on the ocean interest Excepting an odd one occasionally, it is impossible to keep in touch, leave the capture of moving east gale coming compels me to abundon search.
